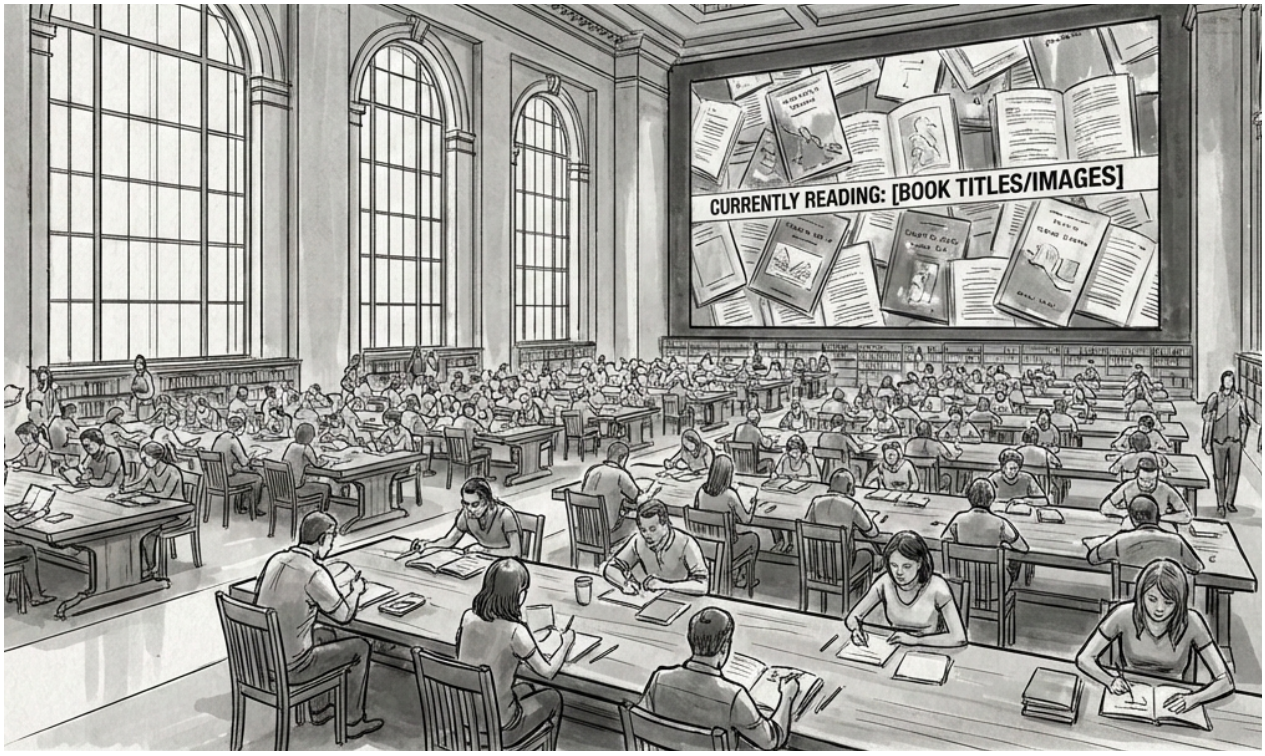
Until Now. Unrealised Art Projects 03.
Digital Library Blackboard

When I am reading books in the library, I find myself curious about what others are working on. Normally, all the readers are isolated, silently reading their books, not speaking to each other, not knowing what the others are thinking.



Are their topics really so far apart? Wouldn't it be interesting to know what the others are working on? What about the possibility of publishing our topics, books, and interests on a Digital Library Blackboard, controlled by an app? That way, everyone who wants can connect with the silent crowd of readers.

I would like to see this project realised one day. Please contact me if you are interested in realising this project (email: andoreasu[at]posteo.de).
